CERES I & II invests
in proximity food
retail in Portugal

Why food retail

Food retail is one business sector that has proven to be amongst the most resilient to economic downturns and crisis.

In the last 4 economic downturns since 1986, the consumer staples sector has proven to hold its performance better than most industries.

Food retail has one of the lowest negative impacts during crises and a cumulative impact higher than 7%.

Why proximity food retail

Supermarket chains are increasingly embracing the proximity store concept, allowing consumers to visit stores more frequently and reducing their need to buy in bulk.

Factors influencing consumer's choice of merchant

Main reasons for visiting the store(s) visited

Throughout the pandemic, proximity stores have proven to be more resilient, thus leading to a significant increase in their proliferation since 2020, especially in urban centers.

Fund Investment strategy

CERES I & II acquires and invests in companies with proximity food retail operations that match the following criteria:

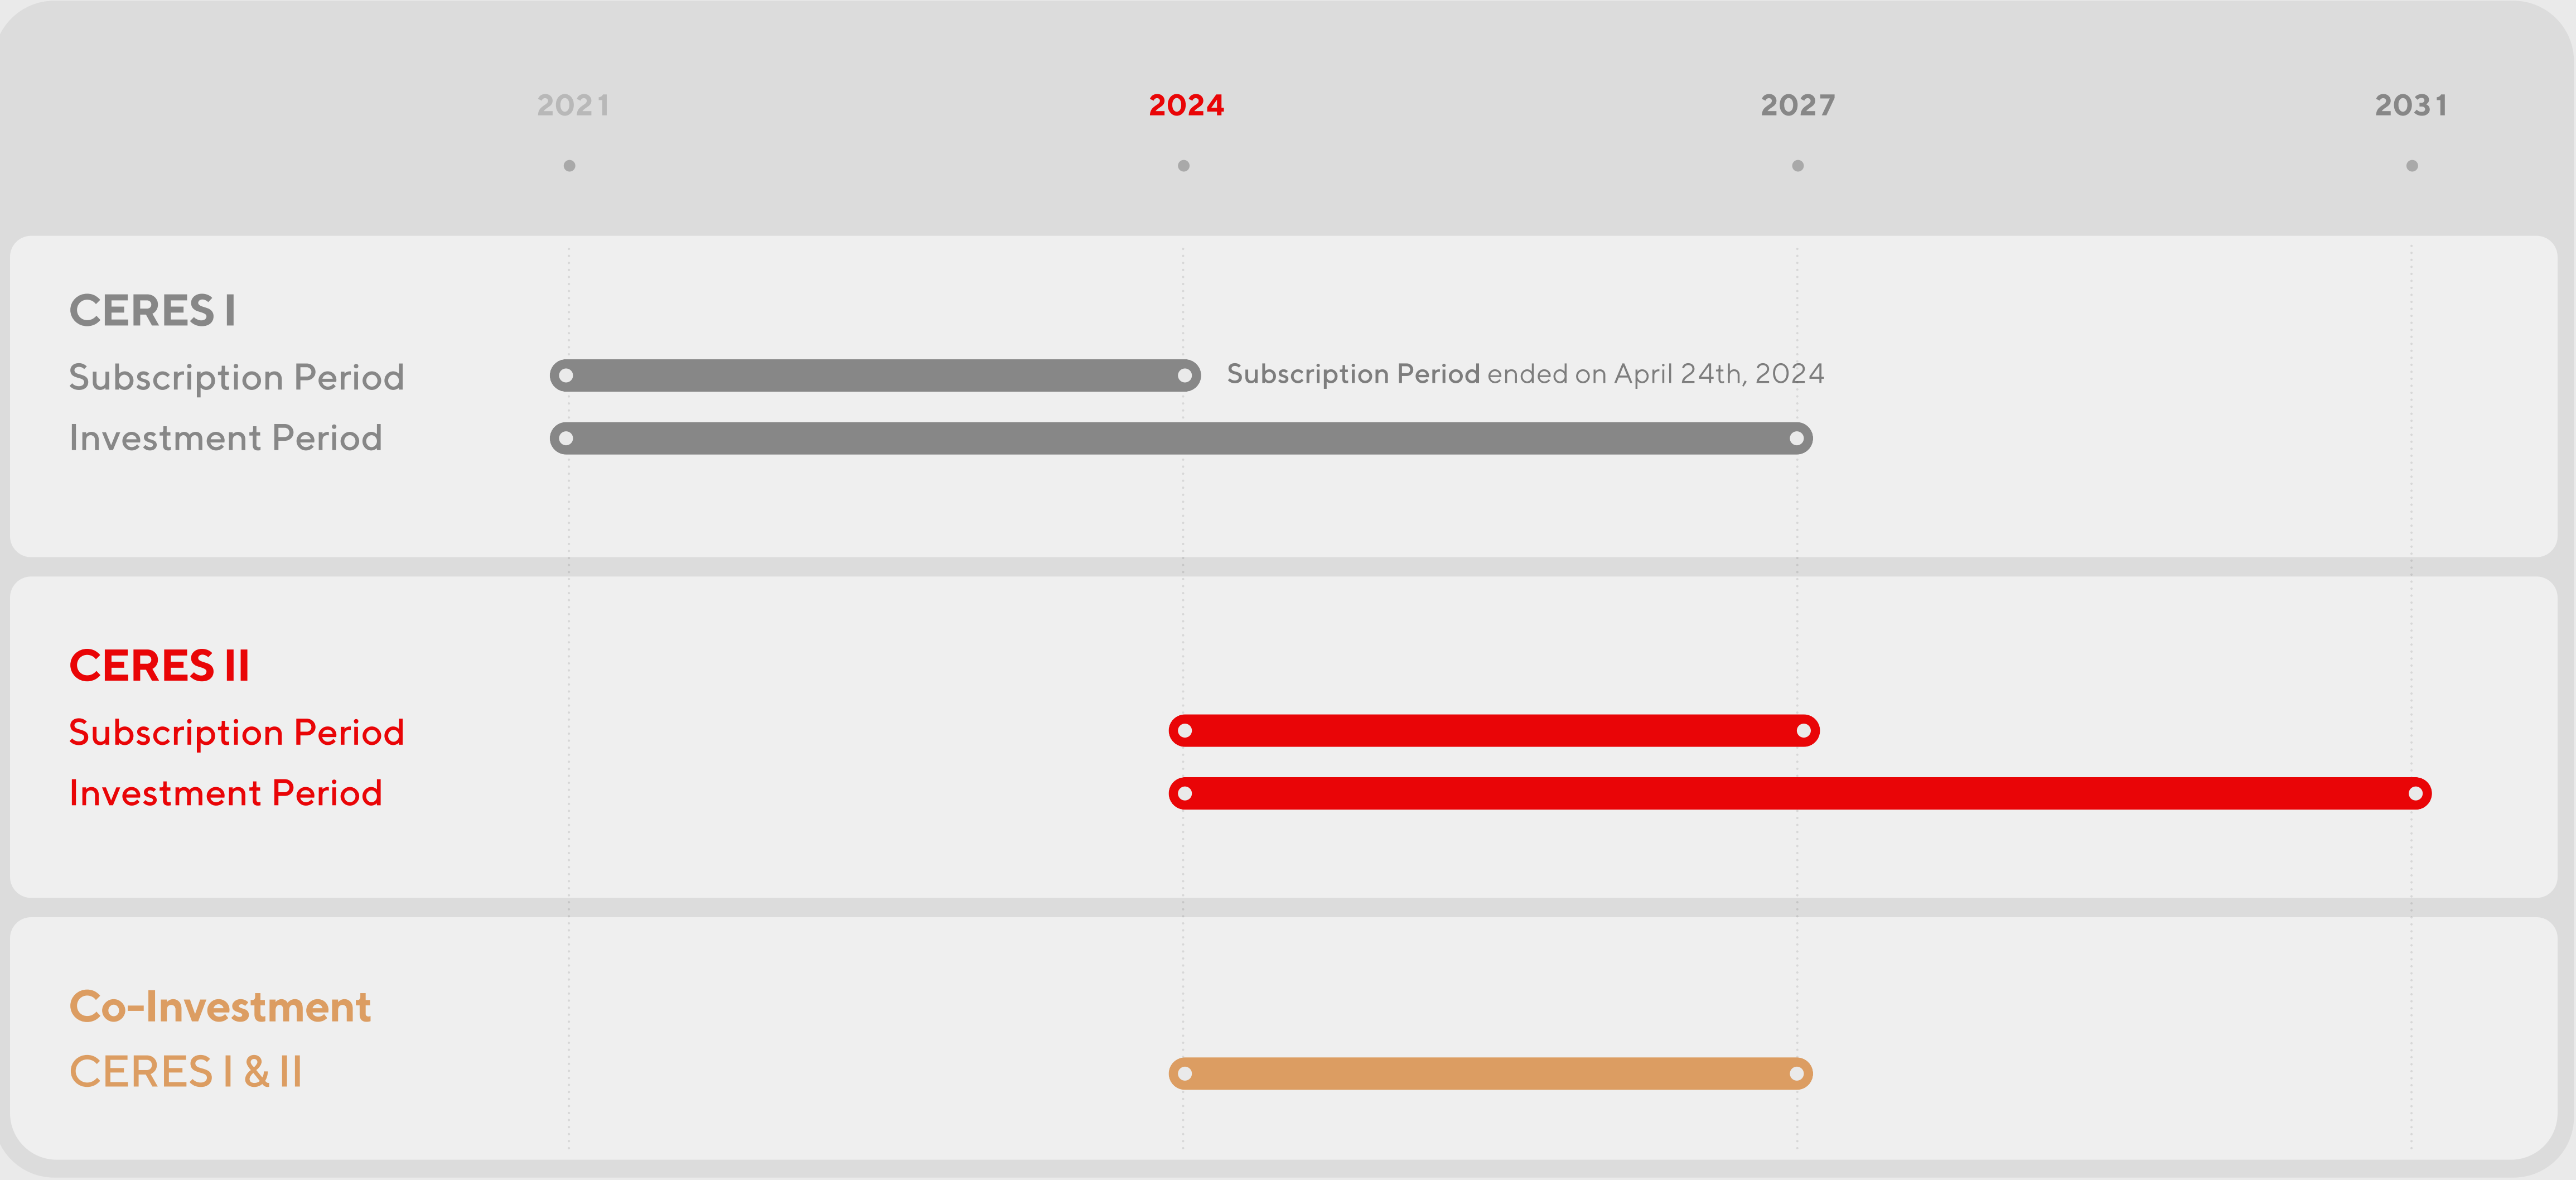

- Location in Portugal's coastal area or in district capitals in its interior;
- Parish number of inhabitants > 7000;
- Population density above the national average;
- Strategic position in proximity to the higher density in the trading area,
- All locations must have a positive population growth over the last two or three censuses;
- Population's well-being levels in the analysis with 4 levels should not exceed 25%, with the parameter low and the combination between low and medium should not exceed 60%.

The purpose of the Fund is to invest (share deals) in majority stakes exclusively in small and medium-sized companies based in Portugal, as well as in their capitalization, with the aim of developing and manage the operation, directly or indirectly, through its own or third parties brand, of Proximity Food Retail Units.

In 2023, our investments have resulted in the creation of over 100 jobs, and are serving more than 46,000 customers, reflecting our commitment to the development and sustainability of local economies and communities.
